GTMO - Y' Got A Regatta

But No Wind

GTMO Sailing fans, not all Sailors, hoisted sail and tacked off into the bay to await the starter's horn and the chance to show off their skills and strategy on the bay course. Unfortunately, the wind we expect in Guantanamo Bay, didn't materialize long enough to complete the regatta. That means that this Sunday the remaining heats for the Catalina Class will complete the longest GTMO regatta in memory. Come on out and cheer on your favorite crew!

COME FLY WITH US!

Yes, there are two ways to get to GTMO, by sea, and most often, by air. The Naval Base Air Terminal is managed by Burns and Roe's resident manager, Mark Veditz, whose travel tips are gospel. On March 21, the terminal completed a renovation that opened the new terminal entrance at the north end of the building. NAVSTA Executive Officer Capt. Mike Fair dropped in to cut the ribbon. The old entrance is scheduled to become a new departure lounge for checked-in passengers and new seating for the terminal is also in the plan to make travel in and out of GTMO a comfortable experience.

Hitting the Airwaves! Radiothon 2003

By JOSH Alexis Brown

The opportunity to have your boss, best friend or even a neighbor, sing a song, hum a tune or clap to a certain beat live on the radio, is just around the corner. It's Radiothon 2003!

Radiothon is a three-day event sponsored by the Naval Media Center to raise money for the Navy-Marine Corps Relief Society. This year's event is April 23, 24 and 25.

While many events are organized during the annual fund-raising efforts for the relief society, Radiothon's use of the airwaves to reach all base residents and their ability to participate via telephone makes this the largest of the fund-raisers each year.

During the Radiothon, the radio station's disc jockeys take telephone pledges in various amounts to play music. Pledges are taken by volunteers and passed to the DJs who put the songs on the air. Songs can be catchy popular tunes or even songs everyone loves to hate. Live on-air performances are also encouraged as challenges to raise money for the NMCRS drive.

In order to make this year's Radiothon a success, volunteers are needed. The Media Center invites all Naval Station and Joint Task Force service members, civilian families and friends to contribute a few minutes of their day to help. Anyone can volunteer. Volunteers assist the disc jockeys on air, answer telephones, take pledges, select music and act as runner to pull the music from the library and to confirm that certain songs are available for airplay.

NMCRS is a private, non-profit, charitable organization sponsored by the Department of the Navy. It provides aid to active and retired Navy and Marine Corps service members, their families and survivors in the time of need, and relies on Navy-wide fund-raisers for support.

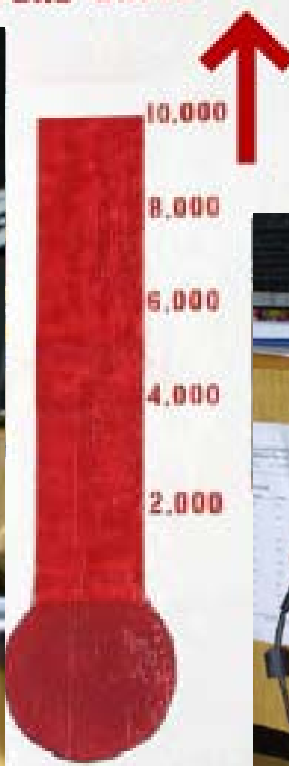

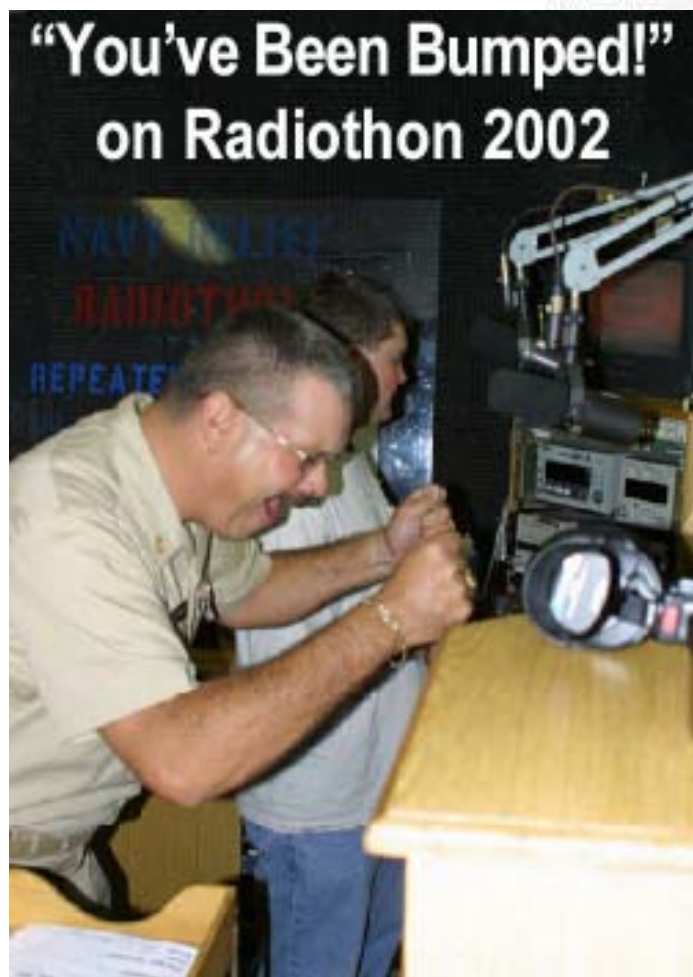

Chief Petty Officer David Bailey heads the fund drive for the 2003 year. For more information, give the Naval Media Center a call at 2351/2647 or email the Blitz Crew at theblitz103@hotmail.com.

Top: Getting base VIPs, workmates to perform on air in response to a challenge is a popular fund raising method.

Left: Chief John Dupee revels in the success of a challenge to "bump" a song off the air. Individuals or organizations can pool their pledges to dedicate a song that will play every hour at the same time, in anticipation that other groups will pledge equal amounts to "bump" it off the air.

A Salute To An Outstanding Volunteer

American Red Cross Volunteer, Terese Bagley

The spirit of volunteerism is what makes communities go around. This is especially true in the small confined community of Guantanamo Bay. This month's GTMO American Red Cross volunteer highlight features a Guantanamo Bay mainstay volunteer, Terese Bagley.

Since May, 2002 Bagley has been an active member of the GTMO Red Cross volunteer staff. Working anywhere from 10 to 70 hours a month, Terese spends her time actively supporting raising funds for numerous local causes. Terese is the fund-raising coordinator and has coordinated the John Paul Jones Hill Run and several bake sales to raise money for the Red Cross. Her efforts have helped to raise $1,700 from the JPJ hill run and about $600 from the bake sales. 100 percent of the money she helps raise for our local American Red Cross stays in GTMO to help support our local community and its needs.

In addition to her fund-raising, Therese delivers mail to our home-bound elderly and puts in many hours in the Red Cross office.

She has also volunteered at the plant nursery, caring for the plants that brighten the lives of GTMO residents. In addition to her volunteerism with the Red Cross, Terese is also an active member of the Spouses Seminar Committee, serves as the Vice President of the Enlisted Spouses Club, works with the Healthcare Services Spouses Organization (HSSO) and is part of the Home School Network. Terese also home schools her own children.

"Volunteering is an opportunity to give to the community," says Bagley who says the reason she gives of her time to volunteer is simple, she "enjoys helping people." She also said there are always things to volunteer for here with the Red Cross and other base organizations if someone is interested in staying active in the community.

The Red Cross gives her their heartfelt appreciation and urges everyone to give a big hand to Terese Bagley for sharing her free time and making extraordinary efforts to give back to the community through the Red Cross and her many community benefit efforts.

LOCAL SAILOR PUTS EMERGENCY MEDICAL TRAINING TO USE

MA2 Matthew Lohr was presented a command coin by Capt. Les McCoy at a Naval Security Force Quarters last week.

MA2 Lohr responded to the scene of a 911 call to find a heart attack victim at Gold Hill Towers. He immediately drew upon his training and began to administer CPR when he found the victim was not breathing and had no pulse.

Lohr is a recent graduate of Naval Hospital's local EMT training program offered to Naval Security Force and Fire Department personnel.

Lohr continued his CPR efforts for over a half an hour, until the victim was pronounced deceased in the Naval Hospital Emergency Room.

Although Lohr was unable to save the victim, it was not due to a lack of effort or training. Capt. McCoy, and NSF acknowledge his dedication to the community he serves, are very proud of him, and have no doubt that the training and dedication of local patrol officers ensures that any of them would have responded in the same, unselfish manner.

The program for the Month of the Military Child at Guantanamo Bay's Youth Center last Friday morning featured the talents of the Youth Center and CDC kids. Here some of the older kids treat the audience to their rendition of God Bless the USA (aka Proud to be an American).

Welcome to the 2003 Month of the Military Child festivities.

Capt. and Terri McCoy arrive at the Youth Center for the ceremonies and are greeted by Fleet and Family Service Center's Brenda Kittrell and Joe Black.

PROUD TO BE AN AMERICAN!

AND IT'S OFFICIAL!

As the Youth Center and CDC kids watch, Capt. Les McCoy signs the Month of the Military Child/Child Abuse Prevention Month proclamation designating the month of April as our month to take special notice of the 2003 campaign on behalf of the world's children.

LET THERE BE SONG!

Navy MWR Signs Commercial Sponsorship Agreement With AT&T

By Ingrid Mueller, Navy MWR
Communications Group

MILLINGTON, Tenn. (NNS) — The Navy's Morale, Welfare and Recreation (MWR) division recently signed a commercial sponsorship agreement with AT&T that will help bring expanded recreational opportunities to Sailors and their families.

"Navy MWR is committed to providing the Navy community with quality programs and services," said Bill Winters, head of the special projects and programs section for Navy MWR. "Commercial sponsorship is a means for MWR to offer events, programs or services we might not otherwise be able to offer."

The four-part commercial sponsorship agreement with AT&T includes events such as "Shooting Frees on the High Seas Contest" and a "Navy MWR Family Film Festival." The agreement also provides for celebrity photograph and voice-over prepaid calling cards to be distributed to Sailors worldwide in time for the 2003 December holidays.

The remaining portion of the contract includes a franchise advertisement program, where AT&T banners will be displayed in or at participating MWR facilities aboard bases throughout the United States.

"We are thankful for AT&T's continued support of MWR programs benefiting Sailors and their families through the commercial sponsorship program," said Winters. "Through sponsorship with AT&T and our other commercial sponsors, Navy MWR has been able to improve the quality of life of Sailors and their families worldwide."

For more information on Navy MWR commercial sponsorship opportunities, please contact Bill Winters, head, planning and special programs, at 901-874-6860/DSN 882, or Bill.Winters@persnet.navy.mil.

Scorpionfish

By Paul Schoenfeld
Natural Resources Manager

The Spotted Scorpionfish, Scorpaena plumieri plumieri, is a marine fish found throughout the Atlantic Ocean from the United Kingdom and northeastern United States through Bermuda, the Bahamas and greater Caribbean, the Gulf of Mexico, and southern Brazil. These fish have as many common names and are referred to as lionfish in Barbados, stinging grouper in the Bahamas, and rascacio multicolor in Cuba (this translates to many colored scraper or scratcher). The name Scorpionfish however, is derived from the presence of stiff spines in their fins which are venomous and inflict a very painful sting if they are inadvertently stepped on or carelessly handled.

At GTMO, scorpionfish are frequently referred to as stonefish. Although related, true stonefish are one of about 20 species occurring in the Indo-Pacific. Stonefish are generally considered the most toxic of all venomous fish, and accordingly, scorpionfish are less toxic than stonefish.

In spite of their wide distribution, scorpionfish are generally associated with tropical and subtropical waters, in reef habitats from 3 - 180 feet of water. They are small fish with a maximum length of 17 inches and maximum weight of 3 - 3 1/2 pounds.

The scorpionfish is covered with cirri or slender, flexible fleshy structures protruding from the skin. Their color varies but is commonly a mixture of gray, brown, red, and black. Most have many lighter colored spots on a dark background, which they use as camouflage to hide among rocks and coral rubble on the sea floor motionless on the seafloor, camouflaged, and ambush prey. There is some indication that the cirri moving with the current appear like food and lure prey species into ambush range. Prey species vary and include finfish, shrimp, crabs, snails, and squid.

The venomous spines in the fins are a defense against potential predators. When a scorpionfish is threatened, the fins are erected, and the spines penetrate the predator. Glands at the base of the spines inject the venom. Although the venomous spines are an excellent defense mechanism, scorpionfish do fall prey to many larger predators. They are preyed on by sharks, rays, and various finfish including different species of snapper.

People using GTMO waters may encounter scorpionfish and an awareness of their presence and ability to sting is important. According to Dr. Scott Plantz (Research Director, Dept of Emergency Medicine, Mount Sinai School of Medicine), scorpionfish cause moderate to severe poisoning (in contrast to stonefish causing severe to life-threatening poisoning). However, in the same sense that different people react differently to bee stings, the severity of a scorpionfish sting may depend on the individual's reaction to the venom. In the event you are stung by a scorpionfish, seek medical attention promptly.

2 pair Lost Glasses - One pair prescription glasses. I lost them last week I believe during the rainstorm. They are a pair of rimless prescription glasses always in a brown eyeglass case. The glasses have a blue upper rim. Inside the glass case should be a green lens cloth written on it "Cohen's Fashion Optical". The other pair are sunglasses, no case. They are brown Ray Bans with a gold rim. I lost them 2-3 weeks ago I believe in the Marine Hill Area. If anyone happens to located any of these pairs please call Sarah at 8004.
